DETAILED ACTION

~~DETAILED ACTION~~

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 13, 15, 20 and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Murch et al. 5,549,758 in view of Chang 4,808,330. Palaikis (5,507,968) is used to show a universal fact.

The claims are rejected for the reasons of record cited in the last office action. The claims have been amended to include the limitations of claim 14, which was discussed in the last office action, and to specifically require the use of potassium or sodium lauryl sulfate. However, Murch et al. teach that it is known to use potassium or sodium laurate. These ingredients are assumed to be the same as Hawley's Condensed Chemical dictionary does not disclose a compound of only sodium laurate. Also, Palaikis discloses that that sulfonated alkyls and lauryl sulfates are anionic surfactants. Applicants' specification discloses that sulfonated alkyls such as dodecylbenzene sulfonate are equally useable in the claimed invention (page 6, lines 29-31 and page 7, lines 1-9). The listed surfactants are seen to be functional equivalents. Nothing is seen that the now claimed lauryl sulfate gives better results than the other surfactants. The reference to Palaikis is used to show universal facts and not to show motivation. In re Wilson, 135 USPQ 442. Therefore, it would have been obvious to substitute one surfactant for another as a functional equivalent in the claimed composition.

ARGUMENTS

Applicant's arguments filed 5-15-03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicants argue that neither of the references teach the claimed surfactant and that Dodecylbenzene sulfonate (DBS) is not stable at either acid or basic conditions. However, applicants' specification lists this surfactant as a functional equivalent to the other surfactants (page 7, lines 1-18). Therefore, absent a showing that better results are seen using the claimed lauryl sulfates, it is seen that the functional equivalent of the DBS is shown.

Applicants argue that the Chung '330 patent teaches away from the present invention and that surfactants such as alkyl benzene sulfonates have problems. However, the reference was used to teach that it is known to use a cation containing compound such as sodium chloride to reduce bacteria on food surfaces (col. 8, lines 26-31) and this teaching is correct whether ABS's are used in the composition or method.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
